Chelan Harkin - Yank the Cork: Unlocking Creative Flow through Radical Acceptance

Friday, 1:30-2:30 PM & Saturday 4:30-5:30 PM - Virginia 2nd Floor, Parlor

Chelan Harkin will share on her long journey of feeling deeply creatively stifled beneath the chains of perfectionism and how creating an inner environment of permission through allowing herself to write what she called "a bad poem" every day broke her out of right/wrong, good/bad confines into deeper connection with self, soul, source, muse than she ever could have dreamed. We'll dive into how the energies we reject and resist and judge in ourself are simply misunderstood trapped life-force and how when we remove our conditioned judgements from them we open to receive compassionate, inspired genius that is life serving and gifts us with wisdom and insight far beyond what we could have concocted or imagined.

Sean Leclaire - Touching Our Better Selves

Friday, 1:30-2:30 PM & Saturday 4:30-5:30 PM - Virginia 3rd Floor, Ballroom

Coach, poet, playwright, and performer Sean Leclaire will perform scenes from his new solo show "LEELA: Touching Our Better Selves" and engage men with inquiry, dialogue, and coaching. LEELA, a Sanskrit word meaning "divine play," weaves gritty townie stories with classical sonnets and stand-up comedy. The show calls us to a deeper sense of ourselves and the beauty of a life lived full-on. It explores themes of mercy, stillness, lust and power, asking "What if I stopped? What part of me is still too tender for this world? What passion of mine scares me?"

Craig Neal - Creating Powerful Containers of Welcome, Safety & Belonging

Friday, 1:30-2:30 PM & Saturday 4:30-5:30 PM - Hall House B

How can you convene meetings, gatherings, and conversations designed for intimacy, depth, and consequence in these uber-disruptive and polarized times? Craig Neal, co-author of The Art of Convening and Vision Holder/Co-Founder at the Center for Purposeful Leadership, will be joined by Illuman Convener and Certified Convening Leader, Terry Chapman, in this circle of men to explore how the Convening Wheel and related practices can support you as a steward of transformation for our families, communities, and organizations.
